Vickie Mullins Biography

Vickie Mullins is known as an energetic, entertaining communicator. Her friendly demeanor and caring style touches the hearts of audiences of all ages and backgrounds.

Her passion for professional communications runs deep. She started her writing career with inspiration from a high school yearbook class. Her writing talent and interest carried her through college and evolved into her founding of Mullins Creative, Inc, a full-service graphic design and print management company founded in 1991.

Vickie began her speaking career and founded a book publishing company in 2005 on the heels of authoring her first of eight books.

Family, church and community are the focus of Vickie's after hours. She is an active volunteer, serving on the Phoenix Father's Day Council of the American Diabetes Association as well as countless church events, Vickie gives her heart and expertise to every project. She was honored in 2002 by the City of Scottsdale as a Frances Young Community Hero Merit Award winner. Additionally, Vickie's company, Mullins Creative, Inc. was the recipient of the 2002-2003 Corporate Partner of the Year Award from the Phoenix Metropolitan Chapter of the National Association of Women Business Owners (NAWBO). Vickie was honored in 2007 for Exceptional Service to the American Diabetes Association.

An almost-native Phoenician (she arrived in the Valley in the mid-50s), Vickie earned her bachelor's degree in journalism, with an emphasis in advertising/marketing, from Northern Arizona University and has completed additional graduate work in business. She and her husband, Jack, live in Scottsdale. They have two adult children, Jonathan and Shannon.
